Volunteer Spotlight

Bob Whitehorne joined our cadre of volunteers in the Paleo lab at Dinosaur Journey several months ago. Judging by the smile on his face he's definitely enjoying the challenges and tribulations of his volunteer service!

Bob was born in Bradford, Virginia and was raised in Chappaqua, New York. Following his graduation from high school he headed west to attend Denver University. He graduated with a degree in Psychology; however, his career was spent in Information Technology for large corporate systems and software development in the Denver area.

The Grand Valley had caught their eye as a great place to retire so Bob and his wife Carolyn moved to the area about 6 1/2 years ago. In their spare time Bob and his wife love to travel. Favorite foreign destinations include Africa, New Zealand and Australia, and they've had wonderful road trips right here in Colorado and the United States.

Bob enjoys the scientific side of working in the lab as well as the camaraderie with his fellow volunteers. Thanks so much for becoming a volunteer and joining our Museum of Western Colorado family!

Corporate Spotlight

This month we're tipping our hat to Brenda McCallister. If you've been to Dinosaur Journey you've noticed lots of "hands on" activities. One of the favorites is the "Build a Dinosaur" box that enables kids of all ages to take puzzle pieces and create dinosaurs. The pieces get quite a workout and, in fact, need to be replaced periodically. Brenda has been very gracious over the last five years by cutting them out and keeping this wonderful mind-challenging activity up and running.

Brenda - thanks for supporting the Museum of Western Colorado and helping us inspire the creativity of our visitors!

The Museum of Western Colorado inspires people to experience and value our region through the collection and preservation of historical and fossil resources. We engage our audience through exhibitions, educational programming, research and publications.

Dinosaur Journey collects, preserves, interprets and displays evidence of the history of life and environments of western Colorado and geologically related surrounding areas.

The Loyd Files Research Library provides learning and research opportunities for exploring and interpreting western Colorado's past, present and future.

The Museum of the West is dedicated to the collection, preservation, exhibition and interpretation of artifacts that represent the rich heritage and history of western Colorado and the contiguous areas of the American West.

Cross Orchards Historic Site utilizes living history to preserve, interpret and educate the public on agriculture, transportation and the social history of the region.

From Our Collections

Train aficionados and the general public enjoy the lineup of the Uintah Railway cars at our Cross Orchards Historic Site. Most of the wheels under each car actually come from Denver and Rio Grande Western (D&RGW) rolling stock. When the Uintah Railway was scrapped in 1939 many of the car bodies were saved and used by Grand Valley farmers as storage buildings; however the metal underneath the car - brake system components, side frames, bolsters, wheels, axles, springs, truss rods, etc. - were removed from the cars and sent to steel mills for recycling.

The components underneath the Uintah Railway were very hard to come by and are nearly impossible to find these days. The wheels and axle pictured at left are extremely rare, with only a few other original Uintah Railway wheel sets in existence.

Close inspection of these wheels reveals FCS Griffin Denver embossed on the outside of one wheel that was founded in 1877 by Thomas Griffin. On the inside of one wheel one can find U RY CO which stands for Uintah Railway Company. This wheel set came from the Orange Empire Railway Museum in Perris, California.

The Rio Grande Chapter of the local National Railway Historical Society Chapter purchased the wheel set and drove to Perris several years ago to haul the wheel set back to the Grand Valley. How the Orange Empire Railway Museum came to possess this wheel set is unknown; however it is speculated that it may have come from Knott's Berry Farm in Buena Park, California as the amusement park acquired other Colorado narrow gauge railroad equipment many years ago.

Who Visits the Museum of Western Colorado: Out-of-Mesa County Visitors

Last summer, working with the School of Business at Colorado Mesa University, we conducted a survey of those coming to each of our Museum of Western Colorado (MWC) sites. The study was sponsored in part by the Grand Junction Visitor and Convention Bureau. The survey looked both at visitors from outside as well as inside Mesa County. This month I thought we might share some of the results for those coming from outside our community.

To start with, most of those who visited the MWC are married women who brought children or grandchildren. This fits with a national trend that moms and grandmas favor attractions that have a family atmosphere. The average age is 46, have a family income of over $51,000 annually (with 46% making over $76,000) and over 75% have a college degree or higher.

There is a difference between why women came to the museum as opposed to men. A very high 49% of men who visited us were "Traveling Through Mesa County" as opposed to 25% who were "Visiting Friends and Family." This is compared to women who were more inclined to come to a MWC site with friends and family (40%) and only 35% were passing through. Overall, though, the two categories were pretty even with 39.3% stopping while traveling and were 36.6% specifically in the Grand Valley visiting friends and family. Normally, for museums nationwide, "Friends and Family" is usually way ahead of other reasons. This shows that we are successfully pulling at least some people off the Interstate.

Another question on the survey was "Where did you hear about this museum?". The highest percentage (39.7%) heard about us from friends and family. This is typically the number one source of information nationwide (though the percentage is usually higher). For Dinosaur Journey, the next highest group of visitors (22.6%) learned about that museum from road signage. Meanwhile, the second highest number for Museum of the West (26%) learned about our downtown facility from the internet. The internet has been increasing in importance over the recent years.

Of the three museums, Cross Orchards Historic Site did the best job of drawing people specifically because of the subject matter. Just over 20% of the people came to Cross Orchards because of a "Special Interest" as compared to 13.3% for Dinosaur Journey and 6% for Museum of the West. This reinforces the fact that Agricultural Tourism is very important. Another interesting related fact is that while the exhibits were the most popular part of Dinosaur Journey and Museum of the West, "volunteers/staff" was the most popular aspect of Cross Orchards.

According to the survey, the highest percentage of out-of-town visitors came from California (18.2%). This was almost double those coming from Denver (9.4%). The Midwest states come in second with 11.7% while Northwest states, Southern states and Texas all tied with just over 5% as the place of origin.

While here in Mesa County, the other attractions they visited included (in descending order) Colorado National Monument, Downtown Grand Junction, Grand Mesa, Orchards and Vineyards and other museums. While the Monument was number one for Museum of the West and Dinosaur Journey, Cross Orchards differed a little in this area in that 51% of those visited the historic site also went to a local "Vineyard or Orchard."

The survey found that 54% of all out-of-town guests that spent the night stay in a hotel, bed and breakfast or camped. This is very high for museums with visitors normally staying with "Friends and Family." The survey found that while they were in Mesa County, they spent an average of $538. That is a significant impact to our economy.

Next month, we will take a look at the typical Mesa County Resident who visits a MWC site.

FORT UNCOMPAGHRE AND THE OLD SPANISH TRAIL

April 10

Register by April 3

Over half a century before the founding of western Colorado towns such as Delta, Montrose and Grand Junction, a small trading post was established near the confluence of the Uncompahgre and Gunnison rivers. Antoine Robidoux's Fort Uncompahgre served as an isolated trading post until 1844. Today the Fort Uncompahgre Living History Museum serves as a reminder of the rugged Mountain Man period in Colorado history. Just as the trading post left, the Old Spanish Trail exploded in use. We will visit the fort as well as portions along the trail to discover what early 19th century Colorado was like. Led by Zebulon Miracle

Pigeons
Stuffing

Butter
Wheat Flour

Clean pigeons, stuff them same as chickens; leave the feet on, dip them into scalding water, strip off the skin, cross them, and tie them together below the breastbone; or cut them off. The head may remain on; if so, dip it in scalding water, and pick it clean; twist the wings back, put the liver between the right wing and the body, and turn the head under the other. Rub outside of each bird with a mixture of salt and pepper; put on a spit and put some water in the dripping pan. For each bird put a bit of butter the size of a small egg, put them before a hot fire and let them roast quickly. Baste frequently; half an hour will do them; when nearly done, dredge them with wheat flour and baste with the butter in the pan. Turn them that they may be nicely and easily browned. When done, take them up, set the pan over the fire, make a thin batter of a teaspoonful of wheat flour and cold water. When the gravy is boiling hot, stir it in; continue to stir it for a few minutes until it is brown, then pour it through a gravy sieve into a tureen, and serve with the pigeons.
